Our work has been recognized!

By Col. Martin M. Mazick
507th ARW commander

It is my pleasure to make the following announcement to the men and women of the 507th Air Refueling Wing and 513th Air Control Group. On Monday, Sept. 15, I had the great honor of representing all of you in Washington D.C. It was the opening ceremonies of the 1997 Air Force Association Convention (a prestigious/first class event). I was invited there to receive the "Outstanding Air Force Reserve Unit" award for 1997.

The Air Force Association recognized the 507th for what we have accomplished over the last year. Each and every one of our reservists, ARTs, and civilians (tanker and AWACS), contributed to this end. This award is something we can be proud of.

Once again, it was a long year full of a lot of hard work and accomplishments. It was our work, as a team, that earned this recognition for us.

In the year in which we celebrate the Air Force's 50th birthday, our 25th Anniversary here at Tinker AFB, begin to recognize the Air Force Reserve's 50th Anniversary, complete our transformation to the tanker mission, and gave birth to the AWACS 513th Air Control Group as a stand-alone unit, we have been acknowledged as the "best."

I am proud to be the Commander of such an outstanding unit, and I would like for all of you to take a moment to be proud as well.

Our work has been recognized!!

McIntosh Sends

By Maj. Gen. Robert A. McIntosh
Air Force Reserve Commander

People programs are important to everyone in Air Force Reserve Command. At a time when it seems benefits are in danger of being reduced due to smaller budgets, I'm happy to be able to tell you we had a big win with the new Reserve Dental Insurance plan due to start Oct. 1.

For just $4.36 a month, you can buy basic coverage, up to $1,000 a year. Even when there is a co-payment, it will average only one third of the cost, less for airmen basic through senior airmen.

The impact of dental health readiness was a major lesson learned during Operation Desert Storm. Bringing people up to standard delayed deployments of some units and individuals. Access to affordable dental care for our members improves their quality of life and brings us closer to being ready to go, wherever and whenever we are needed.

We owe a vote of thanks to the efforts of the service staffs and the military associations who worked to make it happen and to Congress who put it into law.

Chaplain's Corner

Prayer

Not a last resort

By Chaplain (1Lt.) Dwight Magnus
507th ARW Chaplain's Office

A passenger was on a routine flight until something went terribly wrong.

The captain told the flight attendants to prepare the cabin for emergency landing. As the captain was about ready to make the attempted landing, he went on the intercom and said "According to the Geneva Convention, I am advising you that those who believe in God may now commence prayer."

I have a feeling that most people on the plane had already begun praying before the official announcement. But it is a perfect example of how many people approach the discipline of prayer.

If we are in a jam, and we have exhausted all possibilities, then we turn to prayer. Folks, that is not how God designed us to use this precious gift. He gave us the gift to approach our Father in Heaven with our physical and spiritual concerns and use prayer as the first place to turn to, not the last.

Can you imagine the people of the Bible like Moses, Daniel, Elijah, and Paul, to name a few, working for God without a vital prayer life? We should be no different. Take the time to develop your prayer life. It doesn't happen overnight.

But as with any relationship, communication is a key to a vitality. Don't wait for an emergency to pray. Take Philippians 4:6 to heart: "Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God."

Safety Spotlight

By TSgt. Wayne Smith
507th ARW Safety Office

If you are reading this article, congratulations. You made it through the 101 Critical Days of Summer-- Alive!

That doesn't mean that you can let your guard down. We have to strive to remain safe every day, 365 days a year.

Here in the 507th, we have not had anyone seriously hurt over the 101 days.

There was one incident of a friend of someone in the 507th who lost their toes in a lawnmower accident. This person was mowing his grass while it was wet. He slipped. His foot went under the lawnmower, and he lost three of his toes.

As a reminder, don't cut your grass when it's wet. Wear shoes that protect your feet (he was wearing tennis shoes) and make sure the rear guards that come with the lawnmowers are in place, his was an old lawnmower and did not have one.

Every day, I seem to hear someone say, "That will never happen to me," or "I've been doing this for 20 years and nothing bad has happened yet." If you happen to hear this, take a step back and remember that last word, "yet." Those people are the ones who usually end up getting hurt the worst.

Can it happen to you?

Well, that's my soap box speech for this month. But before I go, I'd like to leave you with a quick true story, straight from the news. If it could happen to this guy, it could happen to anyone.

"A 35 year-old Austin, Texas, man became drunk at a party he was hosting one night. He decided to stroll out into the moonlight for a breath of fresh air. As he strolled across his yard, he tripped on his garden hose, became entangled in it, and strangled to death while trying to break free."

Just remember to watch out for those anaconda-like hoses, if you have one, get rid of it, or roll it up near the house. Take care, and I'll see ya' on the line.

Outstanding AFRC Unit of the Year

By TSgt. Melba Koch
507th Public Affairs Office

The 507th Air Refueling Wing (ARW) has been selected as the top Air Force Reserve Command (AFRC) unit by the Air Force Association (AFA).

In a ceremony held in Washington D.C., Sept. 15, Col Martin M. Mazick, 507th ARW commander, was presented the "Outstanding Air Force Reserve Unit" award by Doyle E. Larson, AFA president and Maj. Gen. Robert A. McIntosh, Chief of Air Force Reserve Command.

The selections were based on the unit's accomplishments for the previous 12 months. The 507th performed many significant operations during the past year in support of Air Mobility Command's and Air Combat Command's airlift, refueling, and airborne command and control requirements.

The 507th ARW was tasked as the staging unit for a 135-day deployment of a 28-member Air Force Reserve Civil Engineer Team to Tazsar, Hungary, in support of Operation Joint Endeavor in April 1996. The wing also deployed three aircraft, six aircrews and maintenance and support personnel for more than a month to Pisa Air Base, Italy, in support of Operation Joint Endeavor during April and May.

In May, the wing deployed seven KC-135R aircraft and 374 personnel for a four-day operational readiness exercise to the Air National Guard Combat Readiness Training Center, Gulfport, Miss. While there, air refueling and combat support operations were conducted under simulated combat conditions.

In August, the wing deployed a KC-135R tanker aircraft, a four-member mission crew and a four-member maintenance crew to Bangor Air National Guard Base for five days in support of the deployment of U.S. forces to Saudi Arabia. This was in response to menacing Iraqi military activity and the terrorist attack on the Khobar Towers billeting complex in Saudi Arabia.

Members of the 513th Air Control Group (Air Force Reserve) joined members of the active duty 552nd Air Control Wing in October in conducting the first counter-narcotics surveillance mission to include reservists.

The wing deployed six KC-135R tanker aircraft, over 400 personnel, and all necessary support equipment to a "bare base" site at Grissom Air Reserve Base, Ind., for a four-day operational readiness exercise, during which refueling operations were conducted for three days under simulated combat conditions.

Beginning in December of last year, the 507th ARW placed a KC-135R tanker aircraft and a mission crew on 24-hour alert status to meet US Strategic Command mission requirements, an unprecedented tasking for an Air Reserve Force's refueling unit.

The 507th ARW successfully completed its week-long first Operational Readiness Inspection as an air refueling organization in March, 1997. The inspection entailed deployment of seven KC-135R tanker aircraft, more than 600 personnel and all associated support equipment to the Air National Guard Combat Readiness Training Center, Gulfport, Miss., and conducting refueling operations from the base under highly realistic simulated combat conditions.

During this time period, the 507th ARW conducted other refueling and airlift operations at Homestead ARB, Fla.; Yokota AB, Japan; Peterson AFB, Colo.; Nellis AFB, Nev.; Hill AFB, Utah; Hickam AFB, Hawaii; Howard AFB, Panama; Scott AFB, Ill.; Bergstrom ARS, Texas; Ramstein AB, Germany; Osan AB, Republic of Korea; Andrews AFB, Md.; Barksdale AFB, La., to name a few.

As of March 31, 1997, the 507th accumulated 12 years, three months of flight operations without a single Class "A" mishap.

Local community support generated by members of the 507th included: The 507th Combat Logistics Support Squadron refurbished homes of local elderly residents in a project dubbed "Christmas in April."

The wing's Family Readiness and Chaplain's Offices collected $1,381 in donations for Operation Christmas Spirit, a program to provide Christmas gifts for needy children.

Other community activities included participation in various parades, the 1996 Tinker AFB Open House, providing Thanksgiving baskets for the needy and support of Christmas Toys for Tots, Oklahoma Educational Television Fund Raising Telethon, blood drives, Special Olympics, Oklahoma Safe Kids Coalition, "Adopt a Highway" program, and the Red Cross "Swim-A-Thon."

The unit also exceeded its goals in the Combined Federal Campaign and U.S. Savings Bond drives.

The award comes to the wing as it celebrates its 25th anniversary at Tinker AFB.

"Readiness Is OUR Number One Priority"

Key messages

By Maj. Gen. Robert MacIntosh
Commander Air Force Reserve Command

GOOD FOR AMERICA

Air Force Reserve Command has been good for America since its inception after World War II. In those early days, our goal was to hold on to the experience and skills accumulated during the war rather than lose them to demobilization as we had in the past.

The wisdom of this far-sighted effort became apparent during the Korean War and would be proved in later conflicts when reservists proved their mettle time and again. Our mission has evolved significantly in 50 years but we are still one of the most cost-effective military options available to the American taxpayer.

Equally important is our capacity to help support the Air Force's mission anywhere in the world at any time. For example, Reserve crews and aircraft have supported Operations Northern Watch and Southern Watch from their inception and will for as long as they are needed. Here at home, reservists provide humanitarian support to Americans in need and help in the war against illegal drug traffic and substance abuse.

AFRC units involve themselves in community outreach programs such as Starbase, say no to drugs activities, and other opportunities to help the communities in which we live.

RECRUITING & RETENTION

Recruiting and retention of top-notch people is becoming a challenge. There are fewer people with prior service available to us today and fewer people "off the street" who are interested in joining any military service at all.

We must compete for the best people with the other services as well as the civilian sector. Recruiting is likely to cost more in time and money in the days ahead. Having to send an increasingly greater number of new accessions through basic training and tech school will raise the cost of maintaining our work force and will eventually result in a reduced experience base.

Neither of these two issues is insurmountable, but both will have to be carefully managed if we are to continue at the current tempo. Rumors about reservists opting to leave AFRC rather than be part of an increased optempo are just that. There has not been a significant increase in separations so far. This may become an issue future leaders must address. Most will agree that reservists are under greater stress now than at any other time in their careers.

October 1997

On-final

This results from the greater role we play in the overall Air Force mission and in national interests overseas.

Although we cannot greatly affect optempo, people will stay if we treat them fairly and continue to support them, their families and their civilian employers. Reducing personal stress in these areas is one of the most positive ways to help retention.

PEOPLE

People are this command's greatest asset. Airplanes and other modern, hi-tech equipment provide us the means with which to accomplish our mission, but it is the men and women of Air Force Reserve Command who get the job done. Each is a volunteer, most are away from home more than they would like to be.

Since Desert Storm, Air Force reservists have been faced with balancing the needs of their nation and this command with the equally pressing needs of families and civilian employers. It is important to note that all Reserve requirements since the end of Desert Storm - and there have been many - have been filled with volunteers. This says a great deal about the caliber of the people in AFRC.

MODERNIZATION

Our mission is readiness, but our job is to support the Air Force mission anytime, anywhere. This is possible only if we continue to enjoy the support of the active Air Force. Congressional and Air Force support in the past provided us with first-line aircraft and equipment upgrades equal to those of the active force.

Constant modernization of the hardware we now have is essential if we are to retain interoperability with our gaining commands. There was once a time when we flew hand-me-down equipment. We were limited by our hardware in the missions we could assume.

The Total Force Policy required Reserve and Guard units to be equipped equally with active duty units, allowing us to participate in the same missions.

Today war planners count on our participation in contingency operations. Desire, patriotism, skill and experience are not enough. First-line, up-to-date, modern equipment is essential if we are to remain on the cutting edge.

Reserve unit soars with AWACS mission

By Maj. Joan Strong
HQ AFRC Public Affairs

ROBINS AIR FORCE BASE, Ga. - Crews of the 513th Air Control Group, Tinker AFB, Okla., landed an E-3 "Sentry" aircraft here Sept. 4, marking the first time senior Air Force Reserve Command staff members has had the opportunity to observe the new air warning and control system (AWACS) mission under their command.

The unit, activated March 15, 1996, is the first Reserve partner in the historically active duty Air Force airborne command, control and surveillance aircraft.

"We came to Robins with issues and concerns associated with being the first-ever Reserve AWACS unit," said Maj. Laurie Dickson, 513th ACG assistant director of operations. "But also we wanted to show how well we've done in a year." The unit has already been called on to support NATO Exercise Central Enterprise, a 30-day mission based out of Geilenkirchen, Germany, and the counter-drug mission in Central America.

Col. Kenneth Suggs, group commander, has taken the unit from four people to more than 200 traditional reservists, air reserve technicians and Department of Defense civilians. The 513th will eventually grow to 450 people flying and maintaining aircraft with the 552nd Air Control Wing, the active duty unit at Tinker.

"My key challenges are manning, training and safety," Suggs said. He explained to senior AFRC staff and efforts has to: first, attract experienced people; second, recruit new people in programs requiring more than a year of training; and then support our active duty Air Force counterparts as soon as possible.

The E-3 aircraft requires a minimum peacetime crew of 20 airmen, a flight crew, a weapons team, a surveillance team and a team of technicians maintaining and operating communications and radar equipment. The modified Boeing 707-320 airframe has a rotating radar dome, 30 feet in diameter and 6 feet thick mounted on the fuselage, with a range of more than 200 miles.

During Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm in Southwest Asia and Operation Deny Flight over Bosnia-Herzegovina augmented crews remained airborne, with aerial refueling, for up to 22 hours.

Secretary Widnall announces departure

WASHINGTON — Secretary of the Air Force Sheila E. Widnall announced her decision to resign as the Air Force's top civilian leader, effective October 31, 1997. She will then return to teaching and duties in the senior administration at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Widnall was the associate provost of MIT and a member of the faculty for more than 28 years before becoming Air Force Secretary in 1993.

During the four years of her tenure, the Air Force has experienced many achievements, challenges and changes. Widnall's hands-on leadership style is credited with articulating the Air Force core values—integrity, service before self, and excellence; ensuring the success of the once troubled C-17 program; commissioning the 50 year technology outlook known as New World Vistas, and guiding the long range planning effort, Global Engagement.

In addition to co-chairing the Department of Defense Task Force on Sexual Harassment, she has championed Air Force leadership in space including modernization of space launch through the development of the Evolved Expendable Launch Vehicle (EELV) and missile warning through the Space Based InfraRed System (SBIRS).

"It has been an honor for me to serve with the professional men and women—both military and civilian—in the United States Air Force. What has impressed me the most is the exceptional caliber of the people serving in today's military. America can feel proud knowing the Air Force is well positioned to enter the 21st century," she continued.

"I take particular pride in the fact that I was able to serve as the first woman service secretary. It has always been my intention to see the Air Force through its 50th Anniversary, and then return to academia. I am excited about returning to MIT and will look back on my tenure as Secretary with great pride and a strong sense of satisfaction."

During her tenure Dr. Widnall concentrated on quality of life issues, modernization, acquisition reform and scientific and technological development.

The 137th Air Wing Color Guard, Oklahoma Air National Guard, kicked off the official portion of the celebration with the posting of the colors.

It all began 25 years ago --

Celebrating silver anniversary in "grand fashion"

By TSgt. Mitchell B. Chandran
507th ARW Public Affairs Office

The 507th Air Refueling Wing (ARW) celebrated, in grand fashion, their 25th Silver Anniversary, Sep. 13.

Members of the 513th Air Control Group celebrated with 507th members just after celebrating their own one-year anniversary as an active associate unit.

With three rings of the chime, all attendees were seated. After the arrival of the head table, the celebration was underway.

Master of Ceremonies Lance West, Channel 4 News anchor in Oklahoma City, Okla., kicked off the formal program with introductions and a brief opening.

"It is my pleasure to be here tonight," said West. "The military and community relationship is very strong in Oklahoma. As I look out into the audience, this event is also a testimony to that fact."

There were many highlights during the evening. One of these was the POW/MIA ceremony. As West directed the audience's attention to the table, he explained what each item on the table represented. Lighting of the ceremonial candle was performed by MSgt. Alan Gill, 507th Security Forces Squadron, which represents their absence from our tables and presence from our hearts.

Guest Speaker Brig. Gen. Jim Wade, 507th Tactical

Fighter Group commander in 1972, spoke lavishly about the caliber of people who have been members of the 507th throughout the 25 years. He said he saw a lot of talent in the unit during his tenure as commander and in keeping touch with the unit, still sees an abundance of talent.

Another highlight of the evening was the Air Force Reserve Command's band "Reserve Generation." The band played popular songs and made it an evening of enjoyable listening and dancing.

Toward the end of the evening, Col. Martin Mazick, 507th ARW commander, made the following announcement: "It seems fitting while we celebrate this month, our 25th Silver Anniversary, that in September's issue of Air Force Magazine, we were named the Air Force Association's "Outstanding Air Force Reserve Unit of the Year."

MSgt. Alan Gill lights the candle on the POW/MIA table.

"Readiness Is OUR Number One Priority"

Team searches for Gulf War veterans

ROBINS AIR FORCE BASE, Ga. — Reservists who served in the Kuwaiti theater of operations during Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm are again being asked to help the Air Force.

The Gulf War Declassification Team is attempting to complete a database of Air Force members who deployed to the Gulf War region including Saudi Arabia, Iraq or Kuwait between August 1990 and December 1991.

"Since the mobilization and deployment of Air Force Reserve members was at the direction of the gaining major commands, we do not have the specific information the team needs," said Paul Clement, chief of personnel readiness operations, Headquarters Air Force Reserve Command at Robins. "In addition, aircrew, aeromedical and support personnel moved in and out of the area of operations on a daily basis without actually bedding down. "The best source of information for the team is from reservists themselves," said Clement. "We need everyone's help in getting this word out to every reservist, including those who retired or separated."

The team needs a complete copy of deployment orders or decoration citations sent by fax or mail. The information should include social security number, deployment location, pay grade at the end of deployment, duty status, deploying Air Force specialty code, date of birth, and dates in theater.

The orders can be mailed to SAF/AAZG c/o AFAHA, 600 Chennault Circle, Maxwell AFB, Ala. 36112-6424 or faxed to 1-334-953-6356.

Additional information for Gulf War veterans is available on the Internet at <http://www.dtic.mil/gulfink/>. The site contains the latest press releases, congressional testimony, Office of the Special Assistant for Gulf War Illnesses organization chart, and other documents related to Gulf War illness issues. Inspectors to take smaller, broader look at units

By MSgt. M. Gail Floyd
HQ AFRC

ROBINS AIR FORCE BASE, Ga. — Beginning Jan. 1, the Headquarters Air Force Reserve Command inspector general will eliminate some of the sting associated with unit inspections.

The IG will continue to concentrate on critical areas — those areas mandated by federal or state law, executive order, Department of Defense directive and key result or objective of the Air Force and Air Force Reserve Command strategic plan.

However, non-critical areas, which may or may not affect the overall performance of the unit, will not be inspected. The IG team will also stop checking units' self-assessments, which means units will need to rely more heavily on higher headquarters staff assistance visits.

These changes came out of an Air Force Blue Ribbon Commission that met earlier this year to discuss the role of the inspector general in inspections, assessments, evaluations and awards. Concerned with the increasing inspection demands on bases and units, the commission recommended to senior Reserve officials a reduction in the aggregated "footprint" of the IG. As a result, the size of the inspection team will decrease and the amount of time the IG spends on a base will lessen.

"An Air Force Blue Ribbon commission recommended a reduction in inspection footprints to relieve stress put on operational units," said Lt. Col. Rich Jones, 507th active duty advisor. "QAFA's have been replaced by Unit Compliance Inspections which are reminiscent of the old UEI's/MEI's," he said.

Core inspection items are safety, environmental management, intelligence oversight, contracting, and command, control, communication and computers. Two inspection areas to come out of the AFRC strategic plan include financial responsibility and resource management.

"We're going to focus the IG on what we call 'go to jail' items - violating critical areas that could have a severe legal or readiness impact on the units," said Col. James P. Czekancki, AFRC/IG. "We're not looking at as many things and we will be evaluating cross functional areas rather than squadrons by functional office of primary responsibility. We hope to reduce our footprint by 50 percent within two years."

The Blue Ribbon Commission also recommended changes to the traditional five-tier grading system for inspections. The Air Force Reserve Command will institute a grading system which is basically a "pass/fail" system. Critical areas in compliance with requirements will receive a satisfactory. Best practice will go to units who benchmark for the rest of the command. An unsatisfactory rating is reserved for critical areas that don't meet requirements.

Czekancki said there should be no increase in workload for units to prepare for this new and improved IG. (AFRC News Service)

This summary is designed to give the reader a brief look at some Air Force events which occurred during this month.

Air expeditionary force deploys to Italy

RAMSTEIN AIR BASE, Germany (AFNS) — U.S. Air Forces in Europe fighter aircraft will soon increase their presence over Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Aircraft from units based in Germany will join other NATO aircraft in supporting operation deliberate guard. F-16 Fighting "Falcons" from the 52nd Fighter Wing at Spangdahlem AB, Germany, will deploy to Aviano AB, Italy, in USAFE's first test of its rapidly deployable air expeditionary force concept. F-16s from Aviano's own 31st FW will also be used.

Postal service prepares to issue Air Force stamp

WASHINGTON D.C. (AFNS) — The U.S. Postal Service will pay tribute to the Air Force for its service to America by issuing a golden anniversary commemorative stamp Sept. 18, the date the Air Force became a separate service 50 years ago.

Secretary of the Air Force Sheila E. Widnall, Postal Service Governor Susan Alvarado, and Postmaster General Marvin Runyon will dedicate the stamp during a 9 a.m. ceremony at the Pentagon.

The stamp is the first U.S. postage stamp to incorporate a scrambled indicia, or hidden text.

AMC tanker fleet supports world's longest airdrop

MORON AIR BASE, Spain (AFNS) — A KC-135 "Stratotanker" from McConnell Air Force Base, Kan., led the way as eight tankers roared into the cloudy Spanish sky to rendezvous with an aviation milestone Sept. 14.

The aircraft was part of a fleet of tankers launched from Moron to refuel eight C-17 "Globemaster" cargo aircraft carrying airborne troops from North Carolina to Kazakhstan.

The cargo aircraft flew nearly 20 hours to drop the troops, setting a record for most distance covered in an airdrop mission. It also marked the first time U.S. troops parachuted onto territory once belonging to the former Soviet Union, according to Air Force officials.

Luke AFB celebrates WASP's 53rd anniversary

LUKE AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz. (AFNS) — Luke recently celebrated the 53rd anniversary of the arrival of its first female pilots.

On Aug. 23, 1944, the first of 14 civilian women pilots walked through the dusty gates of Luke Field to assume their new duties as Women Air Force Service Pilots.

It was the world-famous pilot Jackie Cochran who first approached the commander of the Army Air Forces, Gen. Henry "Hap" Arnold, with her plan to establish a military-style pilot training program for women. She convinced him that using female pilots to ferry aircraft from factories to coastal ports would free up male pilots needed overseas in combat roles.

Cochran also suggested using females at student training bases, such as Luke, to test engines, tow targets, and act as primary flight instructors.

More than 25,000 women from across America, from all walks of life, handed in their applications for a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to do their part for the war effort unlike any women had before. In the end, only 1,074 women actually made their way through the seven-month training course.

Key messages

CORE VALUES

Integrity First, Excellence in all We Do, and Service before Self. These are the core values of the United States Air Force. They also are the values upon which Air Force Reserve Command is built.

Not surprisingly, the same values are the foundation upon which our nation was built more than 200 years ago. Integrity has many definitions - most apply to us. The American people have for years had greater trust in the military than in any other institution in this country.

For this reason alone our integrity must be unblemished and unquestionable. Sometimes defined as doing what is right even if no one is looking, integrity is a professional imperative for those of us in uniform. Excellence in all we do means that we settle for no less than the best from ourselves and those with whom we work. Service before self is a way of life in this command.

CONTINUOUS IMPROVEMENT

Being the best in the business does not allow us the opportunity to rest on our laurels. The quality process and common sense both tell us that there is always room for improvement. Improvement becomes more important as resources become more limited. AFRC has been successful in employing its quality tools to analyze and continuously improve the processes that lead to solutions. We continue to demonstrate our ability to train to the highest levels, respond quickly and deliver professional products and services anywhere in the world.
