A climb to remember

Reserve firefighters with the 507th Civil Engineer Squadron honor the fallen during the 9/11 fire climb Sept. 9, 2018, at the Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma, fire training tower.

For the past nine years during the September unit training assembly, Reserve firefighters have commemorated the victims of the attacks by climbing the fire tower for 56 minutes; the length of time the South Tower of The World Trade Center stood after it was struck by an airliner.

THE BUILDING BLOCKS OF TEAMWORK

By Maj. Dustin Born, 507th Civil Engineer Squadron commander

In civil engineering we are a close knit community and like any family, it takes work to make us functional. I believe the focus of our work is in honesty, trust and support. These building blocks are what bring us together and help us thrive.

When I refer to honesty, I don't just mean being honest or telling the truth; although those are very important things and are the basis of one of our core values: 'integrity first.' I'm referring to being honest with each other. Honesty means having open conversations. It means giving expectations and holding each other accountable for those expectations. I have to be honest with my expectations of you and how well I expect things to be accomplished. We need to set standards together, which requires you to be honest with me about your capabilities.

I am going to ask for things at the edge of your capabilities. I will ask you to push yourself and do things that will expand your horizons. There will be times that I will ask you to step out of your comfort zone, but I'll do it in a way that will make you, our unit and the Air Force better. However, the relationship where we make each other better and push each other to new levels does not come without work. Once we've established this rapport, we'll start to build that next important block of trust.

You may have heard the saying that trust is not something that is given, it is earned.

Trust is one of the unique things in this world that, once it's lost, it is almost impossible to recover. It allows us to work better as a unit and as a family. Trust gives us the confidence to step outside our comfort zones and do things that make us better.

Trust in each other to uphold standards and be excellent in all we do is the key building block of this foundation. However, it is important to remember; trust is not the endeavor, nor the reward. The endeavor is the building of trust and the reward is what we are able to achieve by working together as a team and a family. Trust in self is a great thing, but the events that surround it make us great and give us the ability to support each other better. Because the final building block of this family is support and, in some ways, it becomes the most important.

As a family we help each other and we support each other. Having honest communication and building trust leads us to the point where we're willing to do almost anything for each other. Support and teamwork is what will drive us to accomplish things we never thought we could before. Without support, a team is just a group of people, but with it the team becomes a family. Support drives our 'service before self'.

Often we associate the service in 'service before self' to mean putting the Air Force before ourselves, but I challenge you to look at service as more than just a branch of the military. It's also the group of people who are standing next to you today. Your 'service before self' does not have to be an organization without a face. It can be the group of people who made the same commitment as you and to the service of our country. The service in 'service before self' is both a noun and a verb and no one gets anywhere without having each other to make it through.

So this is what I charge you with today: Have the integrity to be honest and communicate with each other, trust each other to make our team better so we can be excellent in all we do and provide service to our comrades and support them.

To the men and women of the 507th Air Refueling Wing, I would like to thank you for inviting me into your family. As we build this honesty, trust and support, my goal is to bring us closer together and to make us a stronger team and family. I'm so proud to be a part of it.

Once an Okie, Always an Okie

Story by Maj. Jon Quinlan

Most of us have our own personal reasons for serving in the Air Force Reserve. Many want to be part of something bigger than themselves. Some enjoy the travel and extra pay, while others appreciate the educational and medical benefits. However, a few reasons for serving as a Reserve Citizen Airmen have not changed in our distinguished history: the people, friendships and comradery.

‘Once an Okie, always an Okie’ is a mantra spoken by a group of several hundred former members of the 507th Air Refueling Wing. This group of Okies met at Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma, Sept. 9-10, for the biennial Okie Reunion. Realistically, there were over 1,000 years of experience in the hangar during social hour. While many generations of Okies were present at the gathering, the bulk of men and women there served in the 507th Tactical Fighter Group directly after the Vietnam War.

“The stories they’ve got just tell so much.”
~ Lt. Col. Kenneth Humphrey, 507th
Operations Group commander

Many of these retired Citizen Airmen spoke time and time again about the comradery of the unit. They may have been flying F-105 Thunderchiefs or F-4 Phantoms, but just like any day, it was all about people and relationships.

Maj. Gen. Louis ‘Lou’ Ferraro (retired), former 507th Consolidated Aircraft Maintenance Squadron commander, was stationed here from 1974-1982. He spoke highly of all retired Okie Airmen and the reunion group.

“You will find a lot of proud people who worked here and they come back here because they made things happen. They were true professionals,” he said.

Current Okie, Lt. Col. Kenneth Humphrey, 507th Operations Group commander, said it was fun and humbling to spend time with the retired Okies.

“You think you’re one of the old guys, and you’ve got the experience; then you realize you’ve got folks that have twice or three times the amount of experience than you’ll ever have in multiple different weapons systems,” Humphrey said. “The stories they’ve got just tell so much... This is a special group of people.”

The Okie Reunion group meets at Tinker AFB every two years to reflect on their service, catch up with old friends and meet new ones serving right here in the 507th Air Refueling Wing. The Okies encourage all active participating Reservists to join them in all future events.

VIDEO: 513TH ACG UNVEILS NEW FACILITY

Story by Master Sgt. Andy Stephens, 513th Air Control Group Public Affairs

The 513th Air Control Group – call sign ‘Thumper’ – has officially moved into its new home Sept. 7, after six years of planning, bringing the operations, support and headquarters elements together in the same building for the first time in twenty years.

With inclement weather in the forecast and last-minute maneuvering, the new structure was also the location for the Reserve unit’s family day Sept. 9.

“The new facility offers amenities and capabilities far beyond what is currently available to our Airmen,” said Col. Laurie Dickson, 513th ACG commander. “This new facility offers five times the area, improving the quality of training for all components of our operations elements while being in closer proximity to our active-duty partners at the 552nd Air Control Wing.”

Master Sgt. Samantha Judge

507TH MISSION SUPPORT GROUP CAREER ADVISOR

WHAT IS A LITTLE KNOWN FACT ABOUT YOU?

I love horror movies! Fall is my favorite time of year. I just finished my master's degree in Forensic Science and once upon a time I designed websites for a living. I currently work full time as the Group Deployment Manager here at Tinker AFB.

WHEN AND WHY DID YOU JOIN THE MILITARY?

I joined back in 2008. I needed more structure in my life and really felt like I needed a new path. It was one of the best decisions I ever made.

WHAT IS THE BEST PART OF YOUR JOB?

I get to help other Airmen work on their career goals. I enjoy interacting with different people and facilitating information to them so they can make a decision for their own career path.

WHAT IS YOUR BIGGEST PET PEEVE?

When someone doesn't ask questions. You don't learn if you don't ask.

AS A KID, WHAT WAS YOUR DREAM JOB?

I wanted to be an Egyptologist. I'm fascinated with the history of ancient Egyptians.

WHAT DO YOU DO FOR FUN?

I enjoy hanging out with my kids, reading, and working on our house.

COMMANDER'S CALL QUESTIONS

ANSWERED!

Q: Is there an active duty associate with a 12 ship Primary Aircraft Assigned (PAA) in our future?

A: No firm guidance is available. A lot of that depends on KC-46 deliveries.

Q: Why is medical not processing commissioning physicals?

A: The short answer is manning. All commissioning physicals, IFC III, and other special exams take significantly more time than PHAs (about a 4:1 margin). With only one day per UTA to accomplish PHAs, profiles, walk-ins, and physicals, we have to balance that weight of effort that returns the most bang for the buck.

Q: What kind of changes/improvements are you looking to make to the ART program in order to increase retention and take better care of technicians?

A: ART retention bonuses for Critical Skills List AFSCs are in final stages of HQ approval and will be finalized in FY19.

Q: Is it possible to have the shoppette open at 0530 instead of 0600 for employees on the early shift?

A: The request has been socialized with the host installation Force Support Squadron who has to confer with their AAFES leadership to determine if it is a viable option.

Q: The E-finance paper voucher process is a hassle and an inconvenience. Is there a plan to get everyone on the same page and a simpler system in place?

A: Paper vouchers are here to stay per 72nd CPTS Commander. We are continuously attempting to improve processes and give visibility to management and members. Please have members provide feedback to their Resource Advisor (RA) who will work to address the issues. Additionally, there are finance specialists available on Sunday of the UTA from 0730 - 1130. Please schedule appointments on sharepoint.

Q: Any news about the 507th getting the KC-46?

A: We are not scheduled to receive the KC-46 at this time.

NATIONAL GUARD OR RESERVE MEMBERS

TRICARE benefits and health plan options are based on your military status, which can change multiple times throughout your career. This means that your TRICARE benefits will change as you activate or deactivate.

If You Are...

ACTIVATED

You're eligible for the same health and dental benefits as active duty service members if serving on active duty for more than 30 days.

Your coverage begins the first day of your active duty orders.

You'll enroll in one of the following plans based on your duty station:

- TRICARE Prime
- TRICARE Prime Remote
- TRICARE Prime Overseas
- TRICARE Prime Remote Overseas

If you are issued delayed-effective-date orders in support of a contingency operation or 12304b orders* per Title 10 USC, you may become eligible for active duty benefits up to 180 days before the first day your active duty period begins.

DEACTIVATED

When you leave active duty after serving more than 30 days, you deactivate.
Further TRICARE coverage options depend on whether your active duty orders were in support of a contingency operation or for a pre-planned mission under 12340b orders*.

Pre-planned operations in support of a combatant commander*

Activated but NOT in support of a CONTINGENCY OPERATION: or under 12340b orders

You may be eligible for the following TRICARE health plan options the day after your active duty period ends.

TRICARE Reserve Select (TRS)

You may purchase TRS if you qualify.

Continued Health Care Benefit Program (CHCBP)

If you don't qualify, or decide not to purchase TRS, you may purchase CHCBP.

Activated in support of a CONTINGENCY OPERATION: or under 12304b orders

If you are issued delayed-effective-date orders or 12304b orders per Title 10 USC, you may become eligible for active duty benefits up to 180 days before the first day your active duty period begins.

Transitional Assistance Management Program (TAMP)

You're covered by TRICARE for an additional 180 days under TAMP and lose eligibility for premium-free TRICARE on day 181.

When TAMP Coverage Ends:

You may purchase TRS to begin on day 181, if you qualify. If you don't qualify, or decide not to purchase TRS, you may purchase CHCBP.

If you are on Military Duty for 30 days or less...

You may qualify for Line of Duty Care and TRICARE Reserve Select

“Our enemies have made the mistake that America’s enemies always make. They saw liberty and thought they saw weakness. And now, they see defeat.” ~George W. Bush

507th Air Refueling Wing Airmen, along with other members of Team Tinker at Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma, took part in the Never Forgotten 9/11 POW/MIA Memorial run/ruck/walk, Sept. 14, 2018. The Air Force Sergeants Association teamed up with the Chaplain Corps this year to run the event, which combines two campaigns; remembering the 9/11 terrorist attacks and military members who were prisoners of war or are missing in action. Events like this help to ensure we never forget the people who made the ultimate sacrifice in service to our country.
